In the '90s, women artists in the music industry were next level. Every genre saw a surge in female representation, but perhaps none so memorably as hip-hop. Historically a male-dominated genre, hip-hop in the '90s saw female rappers like Lil Kim, Missy Elliott, Queen Latifah, and Salt-N-Pepa steal the scene.

7 Ways the '90s Were a Super Feminist Time

"In the early nineties, riot grrrl exploded onto the underground music scene, inspiring girls and women to pick up instruments, create fanzines, and become politically engaged. The movement's message of "Revolution girl-style now" soon filtered into the mainstream as "girl power," popularized by the Spice Girls and transformed into merchandising gold in the form of baby tees, lip glosses, and posable dolls."
